LEADERS DISGRUNTLED

Threaten Disruption of Republican Party and Defeat of Presidential Nominees If Taft Gets The Nomination.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, June 12.—No recourse to the Roosevelt men who have been selected to elect anything different from what was announced by William Flynn of Pittsburgh, should the convention go to President Taft.

Roosevelt leaders made this statement today in a vigorous attack on the national committee which declared that such a movement, while it might defeat the republican nominees for president, would save the party in the straight republican states.

This position was endorsed by Governor Glasscock, of West Virginia, who declared that all the West Virginia republican electors are for Roosevelt, and would vote for him in the electoral college regardless of the action of the national convention.

Senator Joseph Dixon listened to Mr. Flynn and Governor Glasscock and said: "I don't think there will be any need for such action. In my mind there is no doubt but that Colonel Roosevelt will be nominated. The Taft forces will not dare to steal the nomination."

Mr. Flynn and Governor Glasscock declared that the state convention of Pennsylvania and West Virginia had not been adjourned and would be reconvened if necessary and the electors given positive instructions to vote for Colonel Roosevelt if the circumstances warranted.

"We are not going to allow the national committee to destroy the republican party in Pennsylvania," said Mr. Flynn. "We don't intend to stand idly by and lose ten or fifteen congressmen and the legislature. We propose to protect ourselves."

"At home thirty of the thirty-eight presidential electors are for Roosevelt and if they are elected and the nomination is stolen and given to Taft those thirty will vote in the electoral college for Roosevelt."

"We don't propose that the delegates from the southern states and the insular possessions to dictate a presidential nomination to the great republican states. The time has come when a political rebellion is necessary for the protection of the republican states. Under this plan no vote will be necessary. It would result perhaps in losing the republican proerty to the national republican longue, has arrived and began arrangements preparatory to the biennial convention of the league next Tuesday.

Governor Johnson of California arrived today and went at once to the Coliseum to take part in the hearing of the California contested delegation.

Leaders in both the Roosevelt and Taft camps vigorously denied the "compromise" candidate rumors that have been circulating in the rumor lobby.

Governor Stubbs of Kansas and Senator Borah of Idaho declared that there was no likelihood of a compromise and insisted that it was a fight to the finish.

L. C. Laylin, Taft leader in Ohio, Governor W. C. Forbes of the Philippines and H. B. McCoy, national committee man from Manila, arrived today and went to the Taft headquarters. George W. Perkins also returned from the East.

Positive information as to whether or Colonel Roosevelt would come to Chicago to look after his own interests before the contest delegation is finished by the republican national committee, was sought today by both his own workers and those favoring President Taft.

The Roosevelt forces denied yesterday the report that the ex-president was coming, while some of his

NATIONAL CHARITIES CONFERENCE OPENED

Sessions Attended by Hosts of Settlement Workers, Prison Reformers, and Philanthropists.

(GENERAL TO THE DESK)

Cleveland, O., June 12.—The most notable gathering of its kind ever held in America is the designation applied to the annual meeting of the National Conference of Charities and Correction, which assembled in Cleveland today for a week's session. In addition to the conference proper meetings are to be held simultaneously by the American National Red Cross Society, the Federated Boys' Clubs of America, the National Federation of Remedial Loan Associations, the National Association of Public Health Officials and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The several gatherings have attracted to this city a mighty host of prison reformers, settlement workers, practical philanthropists, charitable visitors, officials of public institutions, heads of Juvenile republics and other republics and other men and women who have made their life's work the scientific study of the best means of curing for or reforming the defective and incorrigible, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, educating the ignorant and reforming the transgressor.

The national conference will devote most attention this year to problems relating to the improvement of the working classes. Under this general head many men and women who are well qualified to deal with the subjects will discuss the problems of congestion of population, the economic and physical effects of the eight-hour day, the hazard of labor in coal mining and other dangerous occupations, the high cost of living as affected by industry and an affecting poverty, the relations of employers and employees and numerous kindred subjects.

FEDERALS DEFEATED CUBAN INSURGENTS

Cuban Government Troops Engaged With Rebels Today Near Colcore, Winning the Fight.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Santiago, Cuba, Bulletin, June 12.—A detachment of government troops under Major Romando Collazo fought a battle today with the insurgents near Colcore ten miles west of here. The rebels were defeated losing ten killed. The government troops made effective use of their artillery and now are pouring in on the insurgents.

Promises Peace.

Washington, D. C., June 12.—President Gomez has promised a suppression of the rebellion within ten days, in a statement to Rear Admiral Ostendorf at Havana, with the cruiser Washington and the battleship Rhode Island.

Reports Battle.

Calumeta, Cuba, June 12.—A battle is reported to have been fought today between the government troops and the revolutionaries on the northeast coast of Oriente near Baracoa. The result is not known.

TRYING TO LOCATE MISSING PHYSICIAN

New York, June 12.—The police today are trying to solve the mysterious disappearance of Dr. Louis Arthur Morris. He is a Johns Hopkins graduate who on Monday last left his bride of four days seated in a motor car and has not been seen since. According to the bride Morris stepped from the car upon upper Broadway telling her he had an important operation to perform and for her to go back to the hotel.

SHONTS URGES RETURN TO INDIVIDUALISM IN SPEECH.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Den Moines, Ia., June 12.—Declaring that the spirit of unrest abroad in the world wide and that "weakening of the homesteads and the lack of church influence has been accompanied world over by increasing discontent, lessening of the individual effort and a growth of paternalism," Theo. P. Shonts of New York, today urged that the "People of America get back to the individualism of our forefathers."

These were points in Mr. Shonts' address delivered at the annual commencement of Drake university before a class of more than 200 today.

BODY OF ONE ASHLAND MAN FOUND IN LAKE TODAY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Ashland, Wis., June 12.—The body of George Richards was found in Lake Superior, near Tropic, this morning, and a searching party is dragging the lake for the body of Herman Kalzow.

They both left Ashland, Sunday, on a fishing trip and their overturned boat was found next day. Both leave families in Ashland.

ROOSEVELT PLATFORM WILL HAVE EQUAL SUFFRAGE PLANK

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Oyster Bay, June 12.—Theodore Roosevelt announced this afternoon through Judge Geo. Lindsay of Denver, that he is in favor of woman suffrage in this country and that the platform which he will submit to the Chicago convention will contain an equal declaration to that effect.

TAFT SAYS HE WILL VETO THE MEASURE TO ABOLISH COURT

President Says He Will Veto Judicial Appropriation If Commerce Court Is Not Provided For in Bill.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, D. C., June 12.—President Taft told friends today that he would veto the legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill if, when it comes for his signature, it abolishes the commerce court by cutting off the court appropriation.

Both the house and senate have eliminated the commerce court measure from the bill.

President Taft told callers today that he considered the commerce court necessary to the effective enforcement of the interstate commerce act. In speeches he had said that when its limitations were deleted by the supreme court the new tribunal would be approved by the railroads.

Senate Recesses.

The senate today agreed to a program of three days' recesses from June 17 to July, covering the period of the republican national and democratic national conventions.

Wood to Resign.

The senate today agreed to a program of three days' recesses from June 17 to July, covering the period of the republican national and democratic national conventions.

Admiral Wood out of his office as chief of the staff of the army.

House Recess.

The house will recess for three days only during the democratic national convention, and will continue in session during the republican national convention period on a "gentlemen's" understanding that no partisan legislation will be passed. This statement was made today by Representative Underwood of Alabama, democratic leader of the house.

HOUSER DENIES ANY LA FOLLETTE DEALS

Head of Wisconsin Aspirant's Campaign Talks of the Prospects.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, June 12.—Walter L. House of Madison, Wisconsin, United States Senator Robert M. La Follette's campaign manager arrived in Chicago Tuesday to take charge of the La Follette headquarters. He said he expected a deadlock in the convention and that Senator La Follette, under no circumstances, would make an agreement with any other candidate in connection with the republican nomination.

"We have come here to fight a straight fight through the convention the same as we have fought in the various state primaries," said Mr. House. "We are not going to wibble or wiggle a single bit. All reports of a possible arrangement or deal between Senator La Follette and anyone else are positively without any foundation whatever. We are here to win on our merits or take a licking."

When questioned regarding the contested section of the national committee, Mr. House said: "I think the selections have been made on the merits of the case."

SENATOR KENYON TALKS ON CUMMINS' CANDIDACY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Senator Kenyon of Iowa, who is managing Senator Cummins' campaign for republican nomination for president, arrived here today for conferences with other Cummins men. "The rank and file of the republican party," said Senator Kenyon, "are tired of the controversy and are looking for a new man who will bring the party to victory. We are making no fight against either President Taft or Roosevelt but we are offering Senator Cummins as a happy solution of an unhappy situation."

FIREMEN ASSISTED BY GERMAN OFFICER

Sergeant Richter of German Fleet Aids New York Firemen—Final Festivities Are Held Today.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, June 12.—Sergeant Richter of the German admiral "Steph" returned from Brooklyn in his ship with a number of German sailors. When alighting from a street car he saw flames coming from a building and not only assisted the firemen in checking the flames but did good work in aiding in the rescue of a number of persons.

The fire was in a stable, but it quickly spread to a dwelling house adjoining. Richter took off his coat and groping his way through the smoke helped to rescue several members of the family of John Wagner, who were trapped inside.

This is the last full day of the German ships in New York. Captain Vanderbilt's reception to the officers was not concluded until long after midnight last night, but Rear Admiral Von Thiel Postwitz was up early today preparing to go aboard C. L. Blunt's yacht "Diana" for a trip to Scarborough-on-the-Hudson. They are to be privately entertained by Mr. and Mrs. James Spoyer, who will also entertain other prominent New Yorkers as guests. Diana will be served on the "Diana" this evening, at which the German Admiral and forty of his officers, accompanied by Rear Admiral Winslow and a like number of officers, will be entertained under the auspices of the "Donschen Verleidungen" of the City of New York. They will depart tomorrow.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

by DAN McCARTY

Tommy Ryan is very optimistic regarding Jim Flynn's chances with Jack Johnson on July 4. "Johnson is the slightest bit off," Flynn will surely get him," said Ryan recently. "Flynn makes no pretensions to being as clever a boxer as Jack Johnson, but he is a fighter who has strength and the speed to carry him in close quarters with any of them."

"Now, Jack Johnson can't stand any more hammering than any other man, and you can take it from me that if he is not almost as good as when he met Jeffries, he will not triumphed. I am not going to boast, although I have a very high opinion of Jim Flynn's fighting ability."

There was no blare of trumpets when the New York Highlanders bought the release of Guy Zinn from the Altoona club of the Tri-State League last year. Guy was no high priced, highly-touted phenom of the C'Tools Marquard-Russell class, but an ordinary garden variety of green rookie. Guy jammed his way into about a dozen games on the Hilltop last season—not enough to get into the official averages. He played a few good games, but did not look as if he possessed big league callow. Before going south this year Guy was not conceded a chance to stick with the big fellows, as it was thought that Wilfred Oshorn, the former Phillie, would land the substitute outfield vacancy.

BASEBALL NOTES.

It looks as though Manager Mack of the Athletics has picked up another star in Pfeffer Pennekoff.

"Jeff" Pfeffer, the former Chicago-Boston pitcher, is managing a team in the Greater Boston League.

"Chick" Gandhi, the former Montpelier first baseman, is making good with Chet Griffith's Washington team.

Winning three straight from the Brooklyn Dodgers gave the Cincinnati Reds a good start on their Eastern tour.

With Doulin, Wagner and Hoffman playing regularly the Pilates should be able to cuddle up a little closer to the leaders.

Vern Gregg, Cleveland's great southpaw, is not only pitching great ball but manages to hit the safe walkup now and then.

Despite the fact that the Boston Braves have been up against it, McDonald keeps up a rattling good game at the third turn.

Zinn and Simmons, revereit, and Bert Daniels, who was slated for the cut a few weeks ago, are the only Highlanders hitting the ball.

Philadelphia fans recently presented "Kid" Gleason, the White Sox coach, with a $700 watch. The "Kid" says the watch contains all the latest improvements with the exception of a push-button.

The Philadelphia Quakers are now able to put a strong team in the field, and the other National League teams are booked for a real battle when they meet Charlie Doolin's outfit.

Pitcher Baumgartner is holding his own with the St. Louis Browns. So far this season the youngster has defeated Ed. Walsh and George Mullin, two veteran stars of the American League.

The Harvard University baseball team will be without the services of "Fenton" Fenton, the big twirler, for the remainder of the season. Fenton is in difficulty with the college office on account of his studies.

Manager McGraw, of the Giants, is well fixed in outfield material.

Devore, Snodgrass and Murray were incapacitated at the same time Mr. Gray could use Doctor McCormick and Burns and still have one of the strongest outfield in the National League.

When the train bearing the Cubs arrived at Syracuse the other day the dining car of a west-bound train stopped beside Jim Sheekhard's window. Some of the New York Yankees were having breakfast, but Sheekhard didn't recognize any of them. Later he added what team that was and was informed, "I knew they were ball players," said Jim, "because they worn such tough looking guys."

DECIDE TO IMPROVE BASEBALL DIAMONDS

Commercial League Directors, in Meeting Last Night Vote to Repair Ball Grounds.

Outfielder Harry Armbruster, of Cincinnati, who played with the trumpet U. S. League team, has received an offer from the St. Louis Browns, and will probably sign with that team. Manager Jimmy Duran is still at his home in Newport. Mike O'Connell goes to Aurora, Ill. Taylor to Kokomo, Ind. Budel to Charles Town and Bugs Raymond to Latourelle, Ky. The other Cincinnati U. S. league players are open for engagements.

Pitcher Jack Rowan, purchased by the Louisville team of the American Association, the first of the season from the Chicago Nationals, has been released to the Denver team of the Western League. The deal recently announced for the sale of Lynn Bell by Louisville to the Hartford team in the Connecticut League has been declared off, and Bell will continue to wear a Louisville uniform.

BICYCLE CLUB OF Y. M. C. A. TO SPEND DAY AT FOOTVILLE

Some time in the near future the Bicycle club of the Y. M. C. A. will take a trip to Footville. All members that intend to make the trip please notify Mr. Hartwell as soon as possible. They will leave in the morning, taking their dinner with them, and making it an all-day affair.

RALPH CRAIG

Ralph G. Craig, the former star

operator of the University of Michigan, is America's hope in the dashes at the Olympic games. In the trials at the Harvard stadium on June 8, Craig sped down the track in 10.45 seconds, equalling the world's record for the distance. This he did in his trial heat; in the final he was satisfied to take things easy and was beaten by St. Drew, a 200-metre novice. Craig won the 200-metre dash in 22 seconds.

Eddie Plank

Eddie Plank, of the Philadelphia Athletics, has been confined to the minor leagues several times recently by the newspaper prophets—but fortunately for Eddie the "prophets" don't have the final say as to where he shall go. He has pitched exceptionally good ball this season, and has won almost every game in which he has played.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR PRINCIPLE.

"The principal activity of the demagog is the manufacture of catching phrases, empty of meaning, but ponderous with sound. Mr. Roosevelt is the master of that subtle art. When he thunders forth the pronouncement that his is a campaign for great and fundamental principle, the universe pauses in expectancy, and editorial systems all but oscillate." In vain we listen for the annunciation of the principle itself. A calm analysis of all his speeches leads to the conclusion that the only principle involved is the same one that was involved in all the upheaval of reform in Wisconsin—the grave and significant question as to who should hold the offices.

"The real principle, and the one which Roosevelt nor La Follette, nor any other insurgent dares touch, is at the basis of our system. Our government has ceased to be representative, and under the present system, must continue to be unrepresentative. So long as a majority of a party can dictate the policy of that party, and then by party vote enforce its views upon the entire country, it is evident that 26 per cent of the people could possibly dominate the other 74 per cent. If anyone can figure representative government out of that, he is surely a statistician—which Melville Stone once frankly stated, is the fourth kind of a liar.

"In the final solution of the present campaign against the bosses, it simply becomes a question of what boss we have. Any man entrusted with the powers of party administration must be a boss. The funny thing about it all is, that Taft's only real and conspicuous failure has resulted from his utter incapacity to be a boss. So now he is assailed by the two most skillful bosses we have ever had in politics, with the "Stop thief!" and "Wolf" cry raised to the tenth power. And the cry will win.

"Pity that our benign old friend Phineas T. Barnum couldn't have lived to see the nationalization which has been bestowed upon his immortal epigram. As we say technically, he had the dope."

This is a quotation from an editorial by William Ellis in "Searchlight," a monthly magazine devoted to opposition to insincerity. Mr. Ellis sizes the situation up correctly, for if there is any principle involved in the bitter campaign now being waged, it is not visible to normal vision. Wisconsin has had some experience with this class of campaign and the state will continue to pay heavily for the so-called reform measures for years to come."

MR. DOOLEY'S PHILOSOPHY.

The vein of quaint humor, which has made Mr. Dooley's dialect stories so popular, is always interspersed with a strain of philosophy which is sound to the core and which elevates him above the class of fun-makers who simply write to amuse.

He is impressed with the notion, just now, that many people are won over to the political outlook, and what may happen to the country, and his last letter, in the Sunday Tribune, is a clear exposition of the situation to his friend, Hennessy, which he closes with the following consulting paragraph:

"S'ell it's pretty bad, mind ye, I don't want ye to imagine that yo'er liberties aren't in greatest danger. Only I wouldn't think too much about it. Pick out some conjugal empliment like pushin' a wheel barrow to take yo'er mind off it. Reson yo'er customary occupation. Me an' th' prospector will keep a close lookout, an' just as th' republic is topplin' over in th' abyss I'll find Cassidy's boy down to th' mills to whistle ye out, an' ye can jump into Canada, where they have a stable government with ample stabbin' fr' th' kind iv people that think this country is goin' to be destroyed. No, don't knock off wurrut now. Everythin' may come out all right. If Roan is startin' Columbina in th' face, as this editor says, thin' it's like us not Columbina will sham Roan over th' head with her parson on march haughty on. She's a beautiful young lady, but she has th' wallop in another hand an' can protect herself without callin' th' police."

"An' faith, now that I look back on it, this country has been on th' brink iv destruction ever since I can remember iv four years between th' election in October. It may be no worse now. Maybe th' ship iv state is all right. An Hogan's boy said at th' graduation exercises: 'Sail on,' he says, 'O ship iv state, Sail on, O Union,' he says, 'strong an' great. Fear not each sudden sound,' he says, 'an' shock. Don't ye give a dam so long as we like ye. You're all right, only sail on. Don't stop,' he says. 'Twas something like that.

"D'ye think," said Mr. Hennessy, "that if Tidley is elected he'll be like that Joolys Caesar an' give us a free circus iv day?"

"Isn't that what he did when he had his job done?" said Mr. Dooley.

The notion seems to prevail that La Follette will throw his support to Roosevelt, and thus aid the progressive cause, but the Wisconsin senator never forgives, and seldom forgets. Roosevelt stole his thunder, early in the game, and has so completely overshadowed him in the campaign that he has been lost in the shuffle. The thirty-six votes which he controls are not likely to appear in the colonial column, and he hasn't very much time for Taft.

When the Coxey army made a raid on the national capitol a few years ago, it marched around Chicago for its own and the city's good. The "Rough Rider" regiment, organized to raid the convention, may think twice before making the attack. Coxey retired to private life and has been sawing wood to a purpose ever since. The intrepid colonel, may get back to earth in time to redeem himself if his noisy constituency give him a chance to light.

It will be interesting to know how much money was used to create the Roosevelt boom, as well as to know where it came from. Manufactured enthusiasm is always noisy, but liable to be short-lived, and the question is already being asked, Why is the colonel a candidate? The query is a little perplexing, for nobody knows. The party didn't need him, the country wasn't clamoring for him, and his friend Taft deserved better treatment. The money invested was a gamble at long odds.

The United States Senate, by a narrow margin, placed General Leonard Wood on the retired list, and he will retire from the head of the army on March 4th, next. Some technicality regarding the length of service permitted this action, which is regarded as unfair by the many friends of the general.

The citizens' committee of Watertown, South Dakota, is engineering a plan to build a macadam road across Codington county, in two days. This is quick work, but characteristic of the way they do things in "the wild and woolly west."

The city of Savannah, Georgia, is to vote on the question of communal government. The plan is already adopted by several southern cities, and is very satisfactory.

CLINTON

Her Fate.
A pretty thing satred in filmy lace,
With studions and almost close lace face.
So very staid and serious of mien,
That it is very patent to be seen.
She's weighted with responsibility.
A message for the anxious world has she.

There are some wrongs she feels that she must right.
Upon this one and all-important night.
She has it written down upon the scroll,
A message which is written from the soul.
And it is very plain for all to see
She's going to read the valadictory.

The world's been going wrong since time began.
It's up to her to right her fellow man,
And start him in the way which he should go.
There are somethings the slipped world should know.
The time is ripe to paddle good advice
And pearls of wisdom far beyond all price.

The night has passed, her paper has been read,
The world waits on and this fair maiden is wod.
She then takes the advice all of her life
Of some tall chap to whom she is the wife.
Also, this is the melancholy fate
Of nearly every sweet girl graduate.

According to Uncle Abner,
Every once in a while we run across an old-fashioned duffer who uses his roll of bills in the toe of his shoes and it will be noticed he gen'ally has a roll to carry.
It is a noticeable fact that very few highball experts ever got to be proficient in railroads.

Mexico is goin' to have a stable government. That ought to please the horses and mules.

Mrs. Anson Frisby says high society of Hicksville is suffering from onzwooz, whatever in English that is.
There hasn't been an ice cream social since two weeks ago last Thursday night.

There is a rumor to the effect that one of the society ladies takes arsenic for her complexion and the women all say if they had a complexion like hers, they would take arsenic, too; and if that didn't do the work, they would take Paris

Hot Weather Reading.
On account of the intense cold only those with rugged constitutions can enjoy in the cool fishing busness in the Alaskan waters.

Thousands of head of cattle were frozen to death in the great blizzard which swept over Montana and Wyoming in 1897. The storm raged many days and the temperature hovered in the vicinity of 25 below zero. Eskimos became so accustomed to the severe cold that they are not able to live long in the temperate zone. Those who have been transplanted have never enjoyed good health.

Little Household Infelicities.
"Hearty, honest to goodness, if you leave that screen door open again
I am going to take that fly swatter and swat you right on the skylight.
I've done nothing but chase flies since the first of May."

"Oh, to be sure, Ambrose, I know you had a directors' meeting last night, and I know it lasted until 1 o'clock. You can pull that gas once or twice a year and make it stick, but three times a week is a little strong. Now, I want to hear your latchkey in the door at 9 o'clock no-ight, and if I don't there is going to be something doing."

"Ish, I suppose all I got to do is work and big home stuff to eat. You ought married some men. I know and you would be lookin' for a job teachin' school."

"Whoa! left them there garden hose full of water last night?
Doggone it, I have to buy a hundred feet of hose every year because somebody around here ain't got no sense."

It is Some Dry.
A reader who is visiting down in Georgia sends us the following clipping from a paper in the town of Alta.

"It is so dry here that wagons are going around with their tongues out, too, has to be soaked in water all night before it is wet enough to make lemonade. The catfish kick up such a dust in the bed of the river that the river has to be sprayed before you can go fishing. A spark from an engine set fire to a pond and burned up a lot of bullfrogs before the fire could be extinguished, and the ground is so dry and hard that crawfish holes in low places are being pulled up and used for gas pipes."

There is a rumor to the effect that one of the society ladies takes arsenic
for her complexion and the women all say if they had a complexion like hers, they would take

A BADGER SPECIAL FOR FORMER BADGERS

Passed Through Janesville This Morning Via Northwestern Road For Madison.

It was an all star aggregation of former Badgers that passed through Janesville this morning on the famous Badger special which left the Northwestern station in Chicago at eight bound for Madison. It was a parlor car train throughout and according to the noise made at the local depot they were having a fine time aboard. Some of the former residents of Wisconsin now located in Chicago, who were on board were:

Edward E. Ayer, President—Leader of all the Badgers; Fred B. White, Commissary of reputation; J. G. Wray formerly of Janesville—Heavy singing in real time; William R. Davies—Hobbies golf and sunshine always; Dr. C. H. McKenna—"First aid to the Injured"; Chas. W. Folds—"He is all the money"; John J. Barnett—Light songs with music; W. D. Cantillon formerly of Janesville—with railroad train de luxe; Ed. S. Main—Our connecting link with Madison; Chas. E. Kremer—Mongolian artist of "some note"; Walter Fitch—A whole show in himself; Otto J. Hartwig—Red hot stunts—a surprise; Allard Smith—"All are present or accounted for"; Chas. L. Deering—Of famous baseball family; Dr. Chas. L. Lind—New and mysterious tricks; S. P. Collier—Athletic poses in open air; E. G. Cowdry—Protector of the dining car; Fred A. Anday—Regulator of the temperature; John V. Norcross formerly of Janesville—Famous Impresario; Lynn A. Williams—Several orations and other disturbance; Fred W. Upshaw—Original convention hostess; Judge John P. McCourt—Shows his own compositions; Gerald W. Peck—Old time athlete "Coming Back"; and some fellow Badgers of Madison.

MISS CORA ANDERSON WEDS MILWAUKEE MAN

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Anderson Was Married Yesterday to Dr. Walter Bayless Swanson.

Mrs. Cora Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Anderson, 158 Cherry street, yesterday became the bride of Dr. Walter Bayless Swanson, son of Mrs. Alice Swanson of Milwaukee. The nuptial service was read by the Rev. Joseph C. Hazen, pastor of the Baptist church, at high noon in the home of the bride, only the nearest relatives of the bride and groom being present. The bride wore a French lace embroidered lingerie gown, combined with hand wrought fillet and net and Point de Venise lace. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and white sweet peas. A five course luncheon was served by Mrs. Louise Howman, at the close of the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Swanson will take their honeymoon tour in an automobile, visiting several cities in Wisconsin.

The relatives from out of town were: Mrs. Alice Swanson of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson and son, Arthur, Jr., of Larimore, Wyo., and Mrs. C. L. Pryor of Madison, Victor Anderson of Chicago, Professor and Mrs. M. L. Whifford and daughter Miss Belle of Milton.

The nuptial service was read by the Rev. Joseph C. Hazen, pastor of the Baptist church, at high noon in the home of the bride, only the nearest relatives of the bride and groom being present. The bride wore a French lace embroidered lingerie gown, combined with hand wrought fillet and net and Point de Venise lace. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and white sweet peas. A five course luncheon was served by Mrs. Louise Howman, at the close of the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Swanson will take their honeymoon tour in an automobile, visiting several cities in Wisconsin.

The relatives from out of town were: Mrs. Alice Swanson of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson and son, Arthur, Jr., of Larimore, Wyo., and Mrs. C. L. Pryor of Madison, Victor Anderson of Chicago, Professor and Mrs. M. L. Whifford and daughter Miss Belle of Milton.

PENNY POSTAGE HAS GREAT ADVANTAGE

Subject is One That is Being Widely Discussed at the Present Time Throughout Country.

Hundreds of commercial bodies, chambers of commerce, boards of trades and national associations, as well as thousands of business houses have endorsed the campaign for one cent letter postage. A bill providing for the lower rate has been introduced in congress and is being supported by the National One Cent Letter Postage Association, which has its headquarters at Cleveland, O.

Several score of Chambers of Commerce and boards of trade have come out in favor of the movement.

Not only the commercial bodies of the United States, but many of the big national associations of business men have gone on record endorsing the lower rate. Among these important organizations are The National Hardware Association, The National Supply & Machinery Dealers' Association, The National Dry Goods Association, The National Wholesale Laundry Dealers' Association, The National Grocers' Association, The National Shoe Wholesalers' Association, and The State Grocers' Association of Illinois and Ohio and a large number of other organizations.

The hardware dealers of the country have expressed themselves particularly strong on the subject, every state and local hardware association throughout the United States, as well as the national retail hardware associations and the national hardware jobbers' association having gone on record for cheaper postage.

In addition to the campaign being endorsed by every bank in the city of Cleveland, the headquarters of the association, and those of the large cities, the Illinois, North Carolina, Wisconsin, bankers and many other similar associations have come out favoring one cent letter postage.

Scores of other miscellaneous business organizations in every state in the union have had the matter presented to them and have passed favorably upon it. In addition to this, several hundred business men are conducting campaigns on their own stationery, urging their friends to support this movement for one cent letter postage.

The association, while seeking a one cent ratio is also strongly in favor of better compensation for post office employees, the establishment of a retirement for aged employees both of which reforms would result in better service for the department.

Many prominent financiers and politicians, as well as government officials are backing the movement for one cent letter postage. These include President Taft, Postmaster General Hitchcock and his various assistants, Senator Theodore R. Burton, and Representative John W. Weeks, who introduced the bill for one cent letter postage in congress. Vigorous efforts are to be made to have the bill passed up on at an early date as possible.

Hundreds of newspapers, magazines, trade periodicals and house organs located in almost every county of every state in the union have given loyal support to the movement for lower postage by publishing articles concerning the progress of the work. Many of these publications have come out editorially in favor of the movement and it is believed that the time is almost ripe for the lower postage rate.

James J. Britt, Third Assistant Postmaster General who is in charge of first class mail matter carried by the department throughout the United States, strongly favors the lower rate.

"In my judgment," says Mr. Britt, "a readjustment of postal rates, so that each class of mail matter shall pay cost of service, will make possible not only one cent letter postage, but also many improvements in the postal service."

KILL THE DANDELION.

Many of our lawns are badly infested with dandelions. Some are trying to get rid of them by the painful process of digging. There is a better way. The writer following the directions of the Wisconsin Farmers' Bulletin, No. 179 has sprayed his lawn with iron sulphate with good results, the students of agriculture are also using it on the high school tree lawn. The remedy is cheap and easily applied. Try it. Get 10 pounds of pulverized iron sulphate, dissolve it in 40 pounds of water (about 5 gallons) and apply in a fine spray on a bright sunny morning, after the dew is off.

In a day or so the dandelions will be deeply sick. The grass will not be seriously injured. The leaves may be blighted a little. Not all of the dandelions will be killed on the first application, but even the most persistent will be weakened by the first application and will yield in time.

Cautio-—The solution will spot the cement walk and light-colored clothing. The solution may be hot applied with a bucket spray or hand spray pump, but may be applied with garden sprayer if the holes are small.

Strength in Nature.—The longest weed that drifts and waves under the boughs of the sea or hangs heavily on the brown and slippery shore, has a marked strength, structure, elasticity, gradation of substance; its extremities are more finely fibred than its center, its center than its roots; every fork of its ramification is measured and proportioned; every wave of its hanged lines is love. It has its allotted size, and place, and function. It is a specific creature.—Ruskin: "The Seven Lamps of Architecture."

Wanted a Whole One.—Bobbie saw some puppies for sale. "How much are they, Mr. Brown?" he politely asked. "Two dollars apiece," replied Brown. "But I don't want a place—I want a whole dog," explained Bobbie.

Show's Illumination Progress.—Munich has a museum in which the development of illumination from the primitive splinter of centuries ago to the most modern electrical devices may be studied.

ATTENTION CALLED TO THE STATE LAW

Fire Marshal Purcell issues An Appeal for Same Fourth This Year—Law As to Explosives.

State Fire Marshal Purcell has issued the following appeal to the citizens of the state at large for a same celebration of the coming anniversary of American independence. He also calls attention to the state law relative to the size of firecrackers and other explosives.

"Independence day is coming. Shall it be a day of death, maulching, lockjaw, powder-poisoning and devastation by fire, or shall it be safe and sane, educational, with healthful games and amusements? It is up to each city and town to decide.

"All intelligent citizens must realize that the insane and barbarous manner of celebrating the Fourth does not teach patriotism, and has nothing to recommend it.

"The revolt against the insane manner of celebrating this historic holiday has brought excellent results. The deaths and accidents last year were fewer than in any previous year on record. Still the toll was 57 dead and 1662 maimed or blinded for life.

July 4th, 1888, when fireworks were allowed in the City of Washington, 104 people, mostly children, were taken to the various hospitals of the city for treatment, the following Fourth, with fireworks strictly prohibited, not one single person.

You can help to make a like commendable record for your city.

"Two years ago this department sent out an ordinance regulating fireworks. This was adopted in many cities, and should be strictly enforced. The possible demand of greedy merchants for revenue should not weigh in the balance against the lives and safety of children or the safety of property.

"Even apart from ordinance or state law, every general law is a reward, assistance, and should do so. The laws of any city can do to limit the use of fireworks to parks, away from buildings, whose frame construction and shingle roofs are especially liable to fire.

"Fire chiefs and fire wardens should see that all inflammable rubbish in yards and alleys is cleaned up before the Fourth.

"Municipalities or civic bodies should provide suitable amusements and exercises for the young, calculated both to entertain and to instill valuable lessons of patriotism.

"Police officers should be familiar with and strictly enforce the city ordinances and the state law relating to fireworks.

"Attention is here called to Chapter 413, laws of 1911, which reads as follows: 'No person shall sell or keep for sale or manufacture, or bring into the state for use therof, any sky-rockets, fireworks, or firecrackers, containing picric acid, picrates, chlorate of potash compound, dynamite, mixture of dynamite or other high explosive mixtures, explosive cases using blank cartridges or explosive paper caps, blank cartridges, pistols, or any firecrackers more than three inches in length and one-half of an inch in diameter.'

"A penalty of $50 to $100 fine, or one to six months' imprisonment or both fine and imprisonment is fixed.

"Attention is also called to Section 4397 of the Revised Statutes, which section prohibits the use, sale and possession of toy pistols, toy revolvers, or toy firearms, under heavy penalty."

James J. Britt, Third Assistant Postmaster General who is in charge of first class mail matter carried by the department throughout the United States, strongly favors the lower rate.

SOME COOLING DRINKS.

Refreshing drinks are always acceptable, and the housewife who keeps her ice chest supplied with some of these is always a delight to her friends.

Almond Drink.—Blanch three dozen sweet almonds and pound to a pulp, boil them in two quarts of milk, add one vanilla bean, which may be removed in a short time; sweeten with a half pound of sugar, cool and strain. Serve in lemonade glasses.

Barley Water.—Wash two ounces of pearl barley and add it to two quarts of cold water; heat slowly and boil until reduced to a quart. Add two ounces of loaf sugar and the juice of a lemon; strain and set aside to get cold.

Fruit Syrup.—Dissolve together a pint of fruit and a pint of water (any juice fruit may be used), stirring from time to time, then strain and add sufficient sugar to sweeten—a pound and a half to this amount. Boil for ten minutes and then bottle to use, allowing a tablespoonful of the syrup to a tumblerful of water.

Tea Punch.—Make a strong infusion of English breakfast tea, a teaspoonful to a cup of boiling water. For a quart of tea add a half cup of sugar, which has been cooked with a little water until it splits a thread. Remove and add to the strained tea with the juice of two or three lemons and an orange. A few slices of the fruit may be left in.

Mint Julep.—Boil a cup of sugar with a pint of water for twenty minutes. Crush six sprigs of mint and pour a cupful of boiling water over it. Allow it to stand ten minutes, strain and pour into the syrup. To this add strawberry, raspberry and lemon juice. Serve very cold.

Fads and Fashions

New York, June 6.—Regardless of the new fashions there is a remarkable variety in the fashions of today. The frocks and costumes displayed in the shops show an endless variety of more or less picturesque styles. Although the narrow skirts still preclude many of the models can easily be adapted for the use of women to whom extremely narrow skirts would be unbending. This is especially true of evening costumes, of which many attractive models are shown.

The trains of the evening frocks are rather less wavy than they have been, and show a flowing toward round or square lines instead of the flat and sharp pointed effects of the winter, but except in the case of certain period gowns they are still likely to be of very soft trailing stuffs with no limit of billowing folds or fullness. Very frequently, indeed usually, they are a part of the train or separate drapery, unconnected with the skirt proper, but in the French frocks of an extreme type one finds amazing arrangements of skirt drapery merging into odd little trains and entailing an opening from hem to ankle or knee at foot or side. Of course this slashed up skirt will not be worn without some filling in by the conservatives, but the filling in is often in the form of several layers of thin chiffon petticoats.

In short frocks one finds fewer formal evening models than one did a little while ago, but there are still charming short frocks for informal evening wear and the daintiest of short dance frocks for the younger women. The feeling for trained gowns is undoubtedly on the increase but many women find it hard to give up the comfort of the short frocks, and fortunately there is much more room for the informal evening toilette than for the strictly formal frock during the summer months.

Among the dressy afternoon frocks the short skirt is still vastly in the majority, though trained skirts are creeping in here too. They are really charming, those pretty and useful afternoon frocks, and one may have them as simple or as elaborate as one pleases.

Many of the new silks are highly satisfactory for the purpose and have little of the air of conventional fad and whose very virtues are a general utility frock irritate against it. There is a type of foulard frock which is almost practical and which for a number of years was almost a summer uniform, but this is no longer so. There are still practical foulards, but they are usually of the radish kind of designs and colorings, differing from the once ubiquitous dark blue and white polka dot or geometrical design.

However, there are still dark blue and white colorings. They are so admirable for hard wear and are so generally becoming that women would be unwilling to give them up, but there are fewer dots, and where a dot design is used it is very likely to be relieved by a border of stripe or by a plain border, or to be made up with plain material used in liberal quantity. Sometimes there is contrasting color introduced in the border or the wide border may be of blue and white, but may have a narrow edge, not more than an inch or so of some contrasting color.

Dark blue and white stripe radish foulard with a border design is well liked, and the border in some of the best designs consists of broad, graduated transverse stripes of contrasting color or of plain blue or white. Tiny designs of the small, prim sort are popular for foulards and make up charmingly. These, however, are usually more attractive in medium colorings than in dark effects and are really at their best with a white ground, on which the quaint little design is closely sprinkled in a soft, though often rather audacious coloring.

The taffetas have to some extent superseded the long regnant foulard no summer silk for general wear, but one must admit that taffeta is harder to handle successfully than the softer and more graceful silks, and the percentage of altogether satisfactory afternoon frocks in taffeta is rather small. It is difficult not to have the silk look either fuzzy or hungloose, yet not at its best, when drawn smoothly and yet to drap it without running into the very picturesque or falling foul of the awkward bushiness is not a simple matter. On the whole it is easier to make up taffeta in combination with some softer material in the same color than to use only the silk. Nevertheless, delightful effects can be obtained with the taffeta practically alone when the designer is clever.

Satin are very much in vogue this season and the summer frock that has not a dash of one sort or another must be considered hopelessly out of style. Sometimes the sash is of taffeta—ribbons sometimes of satin shaped in tab form and edged with lace tabs. Again it may be entirely of lace, plied all around the edge with satin. One sees dashes of very broad ribbon simply looped and allowed to fall over the skirt in overlapping ends and one sees black velvet sashes knotted and tied in all sorts of ways and draped against the frock in all sorts of unusual ways.

In Paris they are all mad about the Marfil Armand sash, tied in many loops, and falling over the skirt at the left side of the back. These sashes are usually made of very wide, soft changeable taffeta ribbon, and the loops do not stand out sideways in butterfly-wing fashion, but lie, above the other and fall below the knot in the same fashion. There are two sharply slanting ends, one falling to the hip, and the other exactly under it, to the knee. If the ends of the cast fall separately from the waist line, they are sure to be caught together again at the hip or knee and knotted, or fastened under a rosette or cabouchon of tiny ribbon roses. Whatever such ends do, they must not flutter, and small weights on tapes are usually sewed to the ends of the ribbon.

Crushes, striped linens and novelty weaves make up the light summer frocks, and these fabrics are being varied most effectively.

New neck fashions combine fine Irish lace and velvet in all sorts of ways, bows, bows, dangling ends, loops and wee roses all playing their part.

Long Sheed gloves are very much in favor this spring among well dressed and fashionable women.

PLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

Professor's Remark.

A certain high school professor, who at times is rather blunt in speech, remarked to his class of boys, at the beginning of a lesson, "I don't know why it is—everytime I get up to speak, some fool talks." Then he wondered why the boys burst out into a roar of laughter.—Lippincott's Magazine.

HOG MARKET SLOW; CATTLE ARE STEADY

Price of Hogs Takes Five-Cent Dine.—Sheep Market Was Slightly Weaker.
BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chillico, June 12.—The hog market was slow this morning and prices were five cents under yesterday's average. Receipts at 30,000 were heavier than expected. There was a tendency toward weakness in the sheep market, although the best offerings were in demand at yesterday's advanced prices. The cattle market was quiet and generally steady with receipts estimated at 14,000. Quotations follow:

Cattle—Receipts 14,000; market, quiet, generally steady; heifers 6.00-6.90; Texan steers 6.10-6.15; western steers 6.10-6.15; stockers and feeders 4.30-4.40; cows and heifers 2.80-3.40; calves 5.50-6.00.

Hogs—Receipts 30,000; market slow, 5¢ under yesterday's average; light 7.15-7.55; mixed 7.25-7.65; heavy 7.25-7.65; rough 7.15-7.35; pigs 6.25-6.75; hams 6.10-6.50.

Sheep—Receipts 20,000; market steady for both, generally weak for others; native 3.25-6.25; western 3.00-5.25; yearlings 4.75-5.75; lambs native 1.50-4.80; lambs western 4.75-5.00.

INDUSTRIAL WORKERS OF THE WORLD IN JAIL IN CALIFORNIA PROVE VERY UNRULY PRISONERS; ATTEMPTS AT ESCAPE FOILED

Group of I. W. W. prisoners in San Diego jail.

Members of the organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World, of which William D. Haywood is founder and president, who are in jail at San Diego, Cal., for inciting riots and spreading on the public streets in contravention of a city ordinance, are proving very unruly prisoners. Recently they attempted to force their way out from the jail, but were unsuccessful. There are many I. W. W. members and sympathizers in San Diego, some of whom have threatened to assassinate Chief of Police J. K. Wilson.

Recovered Courting Expenses. A man sued another in the Liverpool (Eng.) county court for the expense of a courtship. They formed the acquaintance of two young ladies, and when the two couples went out together the plaintiff in the case paid all the expenses for the time being. The defendant married his young lady, and the plaintiff sued him for $10, his share of the courtship expenses, and recovered the same.

The Hatpin and the Lighted Match

A HUSBAND said the other day to a friend: "I have come to the wifeless breakfast."

"And do you know why?" quickly asked his wife.

"No special reason, I suppose," replied the husband blankly. "Just because you didn't want to get up."

"Not at all," she answered pleasantly. "It is because I came first to the newspaper breakfast."

To his credit it is, he saw the point and the justice of it. But she had to tell him. He thought he had a perfect right to inflict the newspaper breakfast on her. But he was injured, and also oblivious to the cause, when she inflicted the wifeless breakfast on him.

Sometimes ago a well-known man writer said he didn't think women were fit to vote while they wore hatspins that projected several inches beyond the brims of their hats and endangered all those who came near them. Whereat a well-known woman writer replied that if this held good, men weren't fit to vote who threw lighted matches around in public places where they were liable to set fire to women's dresses.

Both of these instances go to show that the spirit of the times is changing. What's sauce for the goose is becoming sauce for the gander. Once upon a time a woman would have meekly endured the newspaper breakfast and done nothing—believing, or at any rate if she didn't really believe, pretending to, that whatever administered to her lord and master's comfort was the proper state of affairs. She would have cut off her hatpins, or tied her hat on, had it been passed to that effect, and though she might have looked at the lighted match and had her own private thoughts about it, she would never have lifted her voice publicly upon the subject.

Neither the wifeless nor the newspaper breakfast is to be commended, nor the over-long hatpin, nor the lighted match. But the result that is working out of the new condition of things is that all of them will be abolished. Under the new order, the man must reform his unpleasant habits as well as the woman. And surely, to all right-thinking people, this is the better way. It may be very complimentary for women to be legislated into being angels; because perhaps they have no voice in the making of the laws which they must obey. But they have come to the time when they think a little legislation for men, by some one other than men, will be good for the masculine side of creation. And the world will certainly be more symmetrical and better managed when this comes to pass.

So if women who wear too long hatpins are not fit to vote, neither are men who recklessly toss about lighted matches. And if laws are passed fining the woman whose hatpin is legally too long, so should laws be passed imposing a fine on the man who throws away a lighted match. And from the spirit that brings a more equitable adjustment of these things, will come a better lighting of conditions generally.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married only seven months and we are beginning to be unhappy already. My husband complains that I am "letting down" in my looks and that I never give him any of my company like when we were first married. Now, the truth is, Mrs. Thompson, that I do all my own housework and I am counted a very good housekeeper. My husband is hard to cook for and wants three big meals a day (he comes home to dinner at noon). Now, it takes all of my time to keep the house nice and cook, and when he wants my company in the evening I have to wash the dishes and get ready for the next morning, I haven't any time to fuss around about my looks, and, anyway, oughtn't a man to expect that his wife can't keep up the same as before she was married?

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am going with a splendid young man, and we have an understanding—but he is not earning money enough to marry and I have a position. We don't want anybody to know about our understanding. But one of our neighbors saw him kiss me goodbye the other evening, and, as she is a regular old gossip, I know she will talk. Now, what shall I do? It will hurt my position to have it known that I expect to be married, and we won't be married for a long time. Please advise me.

F. L.

If there is an engagement between you it would be better to announce it. It puts a girl in a very uncomfortable position to have "an understanding" without any definite engagement. Better talk it over with the young man, and if he is unwilling to make an announcement call off the "understanding" until he is, and then tell your intimate friends about it. The news will soon spread; I do not like to hear of a young man who is not eager to have his engagement announced at once. He puts a heavy burden upon the shoulders of the girl by placing her good name in jeopardy.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Grauel

The chef replied that it was nameless and mentioned its cost, which the king thought high. "Blow, macaroni!" "good but very dear." So it was named, and has remained, ever since Italy's most precious heritage, furnishing a food rich and satisfying when, when well balanced with added ingredients, is highly nutritious.

The weight of one pound of macaroni increases to five pounds when cooked and contains as much protein as two pounds of sirloin steak and four times its food value. So highly concentrated a food almost deserves to be called a "meat substitute."

Probably the story of the cook who, when asked if the macaroni ordered had been delivered, replied, "The king, but every one of them." It seemed to be somewhat embarrassing to speak of myself, for my friends tried to call me beautiful. Indeed, I am even more inspiring to feel that one's own efforts have brought it all about. To tell how these secrets of mine are not of my own choosing. But I have been importuned by so many of my friends to shed a ray of light upon the little corner of my dressing-room where it has all happened, that I have submitted to their desire.

First, I wanted, you see, to have a certain number of hours of sleep, which, as such rules as they are so often given, are burdensome. Early effective and tiresome methods will be simple and usually even more effective than I ever hoped for. These methods will be so simple and inexpensive, and I can assure you so surprising that the well-to-do woman on the working girl can achieve the beauty that it brings. All I have prepared and the manifold ways in which it can be served are becoming better understood.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

REFUSED WHEAT, THOUGH STARVING.

During the famine in India a few years ago, British agents reported that the natives would often refuse to eat wheat while in a starving condition. So accustomed had they become to their staple diet of rice that nothing else seemed to satisfy. This contradicts the belief of most people in America, where the appetite is constantly pampered by excessive variety, that variety is essential, and that the continued use of a simple diet is distasteful. It is now well established that a uniform diet is the most essential condition for health, and the objection that much variety is necessary is removed.

Moreover, the woman who beats up her husband can seldom work the injury upon him that a man can upon a woman. Wife-beaters have times without number been the cause of sending into the world deformed or idiotic children, or children abnormal in some respect, so that they become a burden or a menace to society. And more than one beast of a wife-beater has so injured his wife that she has become an invalid for life, to the husband-beater's crime for reaching, or as prevalent?

Yet when the average wife-beater is brought into court, he is either allowed to go free "because his family needs his earnings," or he is sent to the workhouse for a short period. Occasionally he gets into a real prison where he is supposed to meditate over his sin while respectable taxpayers provide his keep and his family starves.

In finding the woman guilty the judge declared, it is reported, that if women desire men's prerogatives they should also have men's punishment.

There have been wife-beaters galore, but how many of them have been given penitentiary sentences for the offense brought before the court.

In this particular case, if the husband was a weakling and unable to defend himself, and if the beating seriously injured him, his wife probably deserved some punishment for her act. Women should not be exempt from punishment for serious offenses any more than men. But that the punishment for a like offense should be made severe for the woman will not be agreed to by everybody.

Moreover, the woman who beats up her husband can seldom work the injury upon him that a man can upon a woman. Wife-beaters have times without number been the cause of sending into the world deformed or idiotic children, or children abnormal in some respect, so that they become a burden or a menace to society. And more than one beast of a wife-beater has so injured his wife that she has become an invalid for life, to the husband-beater's crime for reaching, or as prevalent?

Tell you what," he ruminated some more, "I don't believe women are going to vote much differently than men have been doing right along. Of course where interest on any special local thing happens to strike them strong, they'll fall in full force. Now you take playgrounds. I know every woman would vote on that. And if it's a question of cleaning up the city's streets or backyards or something—they'd be strong for that. But just ordinary political things, there'd only be a few interested, just like the men."

"I don't think many women will want to be politicians either, when they find out it costs money," he still ruminated. "I guess they'll be contented with just voting and not running for office or boasting anything else for office."

Do you have to economize somewhere to make your vacation budget heavy hand-baggage? Ten minutes trudging with a heavy bag may put you in a condition that will mar a whole day's pleasure. Frequent over-taxis may bring even more vexing results. So don't grudge the dimes spent in this way.

And last, but of course not least, be sure to take a vacation bright with you, for if you do not, you will have no real vacation. Remember the Concord Sage's warning, "Though we travel the world over, to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us or we find it not."

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

SOME VACATION SUGGESTIONS.

THE SEASON of vacation and travel is close at hand! In a week or two the annual hunt for pleasure will be fairly under way. May I then, offer a few heterogeneous suggestions to the vacationer and the traveler?

First, don't draw advance drafts on your vacation account—in other words, don't get exceptionally tired because you are about to have a week or two, though the women will be pleasant ones.

If you want to look as well when you arrive at the way-station or at your journey's end, as when you start out, wear very plain things: A tailored suit and a silk shirtwaist is the ideal traveling rig for a woman. It may be personal preference, but it seems to me that a woman who is traveling never looks quite so well as in a dark blue suit with a blue silk blouse and white ruche or turnover collar.

He thinking more of the people you are going to meet than of the person they are to meet, and you will be very likely to phone.

Ready to make friends—for after all, unless new personalities are no valuable part of our vacation treasure, we see or bring home—but not too ready. Especially be not too ready with your confidence. Remember that the grand growth of summer friendship is apt to wither as rapidly as it grows.

Whatever else you forget, be sure to take a ample jar of some good cold cream. In your travels, you are apt to find hard water that you won't want to use on your face, and anyhow no water-washing will remove all the stain of travel. If you don't believe this, after a day in the sun, wash your face thoroughly, with water, and then rub your supposedly clean face and neck with cream, removing the cream with a flannel rag, and see if the results do not astonish you.

If you are to make many stops and are one of those people who leave some moments at each place, you may care to try a plan which I found effective. She made a typewritten list of all the articles which should be in her bag and always glanced over it after packing.

Do you have to economize somewhere to make your vacation budget heavy hand-baggage? Ten minutes trudging with a heavy bag may put you in a condition that will mar a whole day's pleasure. Frequent over-taxis may bring even more vexing results. So don't grudge the dimes spent in this way.

And last, but of course not least, be sure to take a vacation bright with you, for if you do not, you will have no real vacation. Remember the Concord Sage's warning, "Though we travel the world over, to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us or we find it not."

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR MISS EMMA FREDERICKSON.

Young Lady Soon to Become Bride of H. C. Randall Given Lawn Party Last Evening.

Miss Emma Frederickson, who is to become the bride of H. C. Randall in the near future, was given a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Corneal on South Main street last evening by the young maid employed in the millinery department of the Archie Reid store. The party was given on the lawn and a very pleasant evening was spent by all present. Refreshments were served.

Unfortunate Position.

Always in debt when there is no real necessity for it.—The letter below.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Attend carefully to your daily routine, for in this way you may expect much improvement in your figure. Disengagements should be quickly and quietly adjusted, for they retard your progress.

Those born today will be fortunate. They will have generous, affectionate natures and their qualities of mind will be of a high order. Many friends and great attainments will be theirs.

One evening at 7 o'clock a man with a wife and eleven children, many of them grown up, appeared at the entrance of an entertainment hall, bought two tickets and demanded that the entire family should be admitted.

The doorkeeper declined to admit the man.

"Of course," said the doorkeeper, "but some of them are too old to be admitted free."

"Too old? What's that to do with it? Don't it say on your bills that children under 12 are admitted with parents?"

"Yes."

C. M. Daniels, the champion swimmer of the New York Athletic Club, said, as he paced the beach at Coney Island:

"The air is mild, the foam on the blue waves glittering in the sunshine and the water is almost warm enough to bathe in."

"The subject of bathing reminds me of a notice I saw posted on the bulletin board of Duke's bathhouse one August afternoon last the family with two children only.

"But all these are my children," year. The notice said.

"Will the party who is in the habit of cleaning his brown shoes on the bathing towels please leave the shoes at the office before bathing hereafter, as we would rather clean his shoes than wash the towels?"

William Dean Howells is a stout opponent of those novelists who, under the pretext of reforming their readers, write books about vice.

"Such writers," said Mr. Howells, "at a luncheon at Kittery Point, Me., reminds me of a lad whose mother said to him:

"Why Johnny, I do believe you're teaching that parrot to swear!"

"No, I'm not mother," the boy replied; "I'm just telling it what it mustn't say!"

Valeska Suratt, the bewitching, wonderful Valeska, before who thousands have abandoned themselves to the carefree joy of an ecstatic half hour to listen to her and look upon her bubbling beauty, is to have a personal, heart to heart conference with our readers in these columns every Wednesday.

The Gazette has secured a great triumph in securing from Valeska Suratt herself what she has never before chosen to reveal for a soft-mad beauty is Valeska, with a superb charm all of her own indomitable making, by means that are new, refreshingly wonderful, deliciously effective. And the gem that has resulted from these is Valeska, as you see her, and as you will never forget her.

Valeska Suratt is the new flower on the American stage, not the faded, sickly wraith of past days, but the robust, gay girl of the spot-light destined for a position of eminence in the world's stage in a fraction of the time in which the ordinary girl takes to make her mark. The singular energy of her action carried her from the platform to the limelight, and her name is magic—Valeska of "The Whoopeeough" and "The Red Rose." She has the reputation of being the most popular girl in America, but whether it is the eloquence of her art, or the twenty-dollar diamond solitaire that is the Suratt pride, the diamond ring which is the gift of Duke Barb of Russia, or the strings of diamonds that adorn the left Suratt hand, nothing can detract from the magnetic spell of her beauty. Her form and form will be the most lingering of all your impressions.

Valeska Suratt is known today as the greatest artist of the art of soft-mad beauty.

No one rivals her in one single beauty. Endowed with but ordinary charms in her younger years, she, with almost miraculous ingenuity set about in her own power to effectuate herself with the looks and ways of a superlative beauty, but whether it is the eloquence of her art, or the twenty-dollar diamond solitaire that is the Suratt pride, the diamond ring which is the gift of Duke Barb of Russia, or the strings of diamonds that adorn the left Suratt hand, nothing can detract from the magnetic spell of her beauty.

WELL POSTED.

A California Doctor With 40 Years Experience.

"In my 40 years' experience as a teacher and practitioner along hygienic lines," says a Los Angeles physician, "I have never found a food to compare with Grape-Nuts for the benefit of the general health of all classes of people."

"I have recommended Grape-Nuts for a number of years to patients with the greatest success and every year's experience makes me more enthusiastic regarding its use."

"I make it a rule to always recommend Grape-Nuts, and Postum in place of coffee, when giving my patients instructions as to diet for I know both Grape-Nuts and Postum can be digested by anyone."

"As for myself, when engaged in much mental work my diet twice a day consists of Grape-Nuts and rich cream. I find it just the thing to build up gray matter and keep the brain in good working order."

"In addition to its wonderful effects as a brain and nerve food Grape-Nuts always keeps the digestive organs in perfect, healthy tone. I carry it with me when I travel, otherwise I am almost certain to have trouble with my stomach." Name given by mail by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Michigan.

Strong endorsements like the above from physicians all over the country have stamped Grape-Nuts the most scientific food in the world. "There's a reason."

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—But Father won't have to report any loss to the Police Department!

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By
GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1908, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"The more fool you, then!" cried Mrs. Comstock. "This time yesterday you were engaged to another woman, no doubt. Now, for some little flounce you come racing here to see Elvira as a tool to spite the other girl. A wook of mine living and you will be sorry and ready to go back to Chicago or, if you really are man enough to be sure of yourself, she will come to claim you. When you patch up your affairs and go sailing away together, where does my girl come in?"

"I am a lawyer, Mrs. Comstock," said Ammon. "It appeals to me no beneath your ordinary sense of justice to decide a case without hearing the evidence. It is due me that you hear me first."

"Hear your side?" finished Mrs. Comstock. "I'd a hump right rather than the girl!"

"I wish to my soul that you had heard and seen her last night, Mrs. Comstock," said Ammon. "Then my way would be clear."

"He gave his version of the previous night."

"Do you believe me?" he finished.

"Yes," said Mrs. Comstock.

"May I stay?"

"Oh, it looks all right for you, but what about her?"

"Nothing so far as I am concerned. Her plans were all made to start to Europe today. I suspect she is on the way by this time. Elvira is very sensible, Mrs. Comstock. Hadn't you better let her decide this?"

"The final decision rests with her, of course," admitted Mrs. Comstock. "But look you on things! She's all I have. So far as I know you've always been a man and you may stay. But if you bring tears and heartache to her don't have the assurance to think I'll bear it tamely. I'll get right up and fight like a catamount if things go wrong for Elvira!"

"I have no doubt but you will," replied Ammon, "and I don't blame you in the least if you do. I have the utmost devotion to see Elvira, a good home, fair social position, and my family will love her dearly. Think it over. I know it is sudden, but my father advised it."

They prepared and ate supper. Afterward they sat in the arbor and talked, Elvira played until time for Ammon to go.

"Will you walk to the gate with me?" asked Elvira as he arose.

Ammon leaned toward her. "May I tell you tomorrow why I came?" he asked.

"I think not," replied Elvira. "The fact is I don't care why you came. It is enough for me that we are your very good friends and that in trouble you have found us a refuge. I fancy we had better live a week or two before you say anything. There is a possibility what you have to say may change in that length of time."

"It will not change one iota!" cried Ammon.

"Then it will have the grace of that much age to give it some small touch of flavor," said the girl. "Come early in the morning."

She lifted the viola and began to play a dainty fairy dance.

"Well, bless my soul!" softly ejaculated the astounded Mrs. Comstock.

"To think I was worrying for fear you couldn't take care of yourself!"

Elvira laughed as she played.

The month which followed was a repetition of the previous June, with math hunts, specimen gathering and perfect nights filled with music, save that Philip was now Elvira's avowed suitor. Edith Carr, sick at heart, sailed for Europe. At the end of a month Philip asked Elvira to be his wife, but she pleaded for more time, saying she must be absolutely sure of herself and of him before she could say yes. But she consented to wear a beautiful emerald ring which he had had sent from Chicago.

CHAPTER XXIV. Wherein Chicago Comes to the Limberlost.

HONK, honk, honk! Hart Henderson set the alarm of the big automobile going as it shot from behind the trees along the Brushwood road. The picture of a vine covered cabin, a great drooping tree, a green clad girl and a man bending over her very closely flushed into view. Edith Carr caught her breath with a snap. Polly Ammon gav Tom Levering a quick touch and wickedly winked at him.

Several days before Edith had returned from Europe suddenly. She and Henderson had called at the Ammon residence, saying that they were going to motor down to the Limberlost to see Philip a few hours and urged that Polly and Tom accompany them.

Mrs. Ammon thought it better to have Philip along to support Philip than to allow him to confront Edith unexpectedly and alone. Polly was full of spirit. She did not like Edith and did not relish the thought of her as a sister.

Two days before her father had extracted a promise of secrecy, given Philip's address and told her to send him the most emerald ring she could select. Polly knew how that ring would be used. What she did not know was that the girl who accompanied her went back to the store afterward, made an excuse to the clerk that she had been sent to be absolutely sure that the address was right and so secured it for Edith Carr.

Two days later Edith had induced Hart Henderson to take her to Oneida. By the aid of maps they located the Comstock land and passed it merely to see the place. Henderson had that trip and implored Edith not to take it, but she made no effort to conceal from him what she suffered, and it was more than he could endure. The sunlight etched with distinctness the scene at the west end of the cabin. Instinctively, to save Edith, Henderson set the whistle blowing. He had thought to go on to the city, but Polly Ammon stood, crying, "Phil, Phil!" Tom Levering was on his feet shouting and waving, while Edith in her most imperious manner ordered him to turn into the lane leading through the woods beside the cabin.

"Fix it some way that get a minute alone with her," she commanded as he stopped the car.

"That is my sister Polly, her fiance Tom Levering, a friend of mine named Henderson and—" began Ammon.

"Edith Carr," volunteered Elvira. "And Edith Carr," repeated Philip Ammon. "Elvira, be brave for my sake. Their coming can make no difference in any way. I won't let them stay but a few minutes. Come with me!"

"Do I look scared?" inquired Elvira serenely. "This is why you have not had your answer. I have been waiting just six weeks for that motor. You may bring them to me at the arbor."

"Will you walk to the gate with me?" asked Elvira as he arose.

Ammon leaned toward her. "May I tell you tomorrow why I came?" he asked.

"I think not," replied Elvira. "The fact is I don't care why you came. It is enough for me that we are your very good friends and that in trouble you have found us a refuge. I fancy we had better live a week or two before you say anything. There is a possibility what you have to say may change in that length of time."

"It will not change one iota!" cried Ammon.

"Then it will have the grace of that much age to give it some small touch of flavor," said the girl. "Come early in the morning."

She lifted the viola and began to play a dainty fairy dance.

"Well, bless my soul!" softly ejaculated the astounded Mrs. Comstock.

Elvira laughed as she played.

The month which followed was a repetition of the previous June, with math hunts, specimen gathering and perfect nights filled with music, save that Philip was now Elvira's avowed suitor. Edith Carr, sick at heart, sailed for Europe. At the end of a month Philip asked Elvira to be his wife, but she pleaded for more time, saying she must be absolutely sure of herself and of him before she could say yes. But she consented to wear a beautiful emerald ring which he had had sent from Chicago.

"Come into the shade," she urged. "You must have found it warm on these country roads. Won't you lay aside your dust coat and have a cool drink? Philip, would you ask mother to come and bring that pitcher in the springhouse?"

They entered the arbor, exclaiming at the dim, green coolness. Mrs. Comstock came deliberately, talking to Ammon as she approached. Elvira gave her one searching look but could discover only an extreme brightness of eye to denote any unusual feeling.

Polly instantly went to her and held up her face to be kissed. Mrs. Comstock's eyes twinkled, and she made the greeting hearty.

Soon the pitcher was empty, and Elvira picked it up and went to refill it.

While she was gone Henderson asked Philip what about some trouble he was having with his car. They went to the woods and began a minute examination to find a defect which did not exist.

Polly and Levering were having an animated conversation with Mrs. Comstock. Henderson saw Edith arrive, follow the garden path next the woods and stand waiting under the willow which Elvira would pass on her return. It was for that meeting he had made the trip. He got down on the ground, tore up the car, worked, asked for help and kept Philip busy screwing bolts and applying the oil can. All the time Henderson kept an eye on Edith and Elvira under the willow. But took pains to lay the work he asked Philip to do where that scene would be out of his sight. When Elvira came around the corner with the pitcher she found herself facing Edith Carr.

"I want a minute with you," said Miss Carr.

"Very well," replied Elvira, walking on.

"Set the pitcher on the bench there," commanded Edith Carr as if speaking to a servant.

"I prefer not to offer my guests a warm drink," said Elvira. "I'll come back if you really wish to speak with me."

"I came solely for that," said Edith Carr.

"It would be a pity to travel so far in this dust and heat for nothing. I'll only go once."

Elvira set the pitcher before her mother. "Please serve this," she said. "Miss Carr wishes to speak with me."

The girl slowly and gravely walked back to the willow.

"Will you be seated?" she asked politely.

Edith Carr glanced at the bench while a shudder shook her.

"No, I prefer to stand," she said. "Did Mr. Ammon give you the ring you are wearing, and do you consider yourself engaged to him?"

"By what right do you ask such personal questions as those?" inquired Elvira.

"By the right of a betrothed wife. I have been promised to Philip Ammon."

She could see that Miss Carr was splendidly beautiful, while she moved with the hauteur and grace supposed to be the prerogatives of royalty. And she had instantly taken possession of Philip Ammon. But Ammon also had a brain which was working with rapidity. He knew Elvira was watching so he swung around to the others.

"Give her up, Tom!" he cried. "I didn't know I wanted to see the little blonde so badly, but I do. How dare father and mother? Polly, be good to Elvira," he whispered.

"C'm-huh," assented Polly. And aloud, "I never saw such a beauty. Thomas Aquinas Levering, you come straight here and take my hand."

Philip's move to compel Ammon to approach Elvira beside her had been easy to see; also its failure. Henderson stepped into Ammon's place as he turned to his sister. Instead of taking Philip's hand Levering ran to open the gate. Edith passed through first, but Polly darted in front of her on the run, with Philip holding her arm, and swept up to Elvira. Polly looked for the ring and saw it. That settled matters with her.

"You lovely, lovely, darling girl!" she cried, throwing her arms around Elvira and kissing her. With her lips near Elvira's ear, Polly whispered, "Sister-dear, dear sister!"

Elvira drew back, staring at Polly in confused amazement. She was a beautiful girl, dressed in some wonderful way. Her eyes were sparkling and dancing, and as she turned to make way for the others she kept one of Elvira's hands in hers. Edith bowed low, muttered something and touched Elvira's fingers. In that instant only shiny was in Elvira's breast for the shining dark beauty.

"I seriously doubt that," said Elvira. "But I am perfectly willing that you should make the test. I will call him."

Australian Olive Tree.

The olive tree of western Australia, growing to a height of 100 feet, and a diameter of 2½ to three feet, yields the strongest timber known. Late tests showed an average tensile strength of 24,000 pounds to the square inch, equal to that of cast iron, and some specimens resisted 17½ tons to the square inch, equal to the tensile strength of wrought iron.

Lesson in English.

"Pa, what is the meaning of inconsistency?" asked Freddy. "Inconsistency, my son," exclaimed pa, "means a man who grows all day and then goes home and kicks the dog for barking at night."

Nothing Can Undermine It in Janesville.

BAD BREATH

It's Your Duty to Get at the Cause and Remove It. A Word to the Wise, You Know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, will positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system of impurities.

They do off all that dangerous calomel devoid without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Olive tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil.

Try Olive Tablets today. Take one every night for a week and note the effect.

Polly looked for the ring and saw it. That settled matters with her.

"You lovely, lovely, darling girl!" she cried, throwing her arms around Elvira and kissing her. With her lips near Elvira's ear, Polly whispered, "Sister-dear, dear sister!"

Elvira drew back, staring at Polly in confused amazement. She was a beautiful girl, dressed in some wonderful way. Her eyes were sparkling and dancing, and as she turned to make way for the others she kept one of Elvira's hands in hers. Edith bowed low, muttered something and touched Elvira's fingers. In that instant only shiny was in Elvira's breast for the shining dark beauty.

"I seriously doubt that," said Elvira. "But I am perfectly willing that you should make the test. I will call him."

All day she is toiling, she's baking, she's bottling, she's cleaning the windows, she's sweeping the floor; she's sewing on patches and picking up matches; and clutching the agents away from the door. She's cooking, she's canning, she's scheming, she's planning, she's looking for dust with her eye to a lens; she's begging the neighbors to keep up their hens. She's dyeing her dresses and awfully confesses they'll look pretty well when they're turned inside out; she's putting up pleats to save a few nickels; she's whining up cabbage to make into kraut. There's no rest or play time through all the long day time, there's nothing in sight that would make her heart glad; and even when she's sitting there she takes up her knitting to fashion a rock or a muller for dad. Oh, why should a woman do such superhuman? What pleasure to her does existence afford, and what is the burden that pays for the burden—where finds she the profit, and where the reward? Her husband is coming, a roundelay humming, he calls her a pet name and dives her a kiss; her weary face brightens, with love her eye lights, she seems quite content with such payment as this!

CURIOS BITS OF HISTORY

ONLY GIANTS WANTED.

By A. W. MACY.

King Frederick William, generally known as Frederick the Great, had a consuming desire to form a brigade of giants, and his agents ransacked not Europe alone, but almost every corner of the civilized world, in search of men of extraordinary size. Any man whose head towered above the heads of the multitude was not only acceptable but earnestly desired. One big Irishman, whom an agent of Frederick picked up on the streets of London, was more than seven feet tall. On account of his great stature he received a bounty amounting to more than $6,000. In addition to his regular pay. Such a soldier could not shoot any straighter or more rapidly than a small man, while he was much more likely to be hit by the balls of the enemy. Frederick did not succeed in realizing his ambition to form a large brigade of giants, but he secured quite a collection of men notable for this immense physical dimensions if for nothing else:

Willie—Ten.

OF NO IMPORTANCE.

"Are they to be married soon?"
"Well, he thinks they are."

"Oh! that's not of the slightest consequence in an affair of this kind. What does she think about it?"

NOT WORTH IT.

Chumleigh—There are times, Miss Sharpe, when I don't know my own mind.

Miss Sharpe—Why don't you have it tagged, then?

MAN COUGHS AND BREAKS RIBS.

After a frightful coughing spell a man in Neenah, Wis., felt terrible pains in his side and his doctor found two ribs had been broken. What agony Dr. King's New Discovery would have saved him. A few tonic-powdered ends a late cough, while persistent use roots obstinate coughs, expels stubborn colds or banks weak, sore lungs. "I feel sure it's a good road to immunity," writes Mrs. Ella Morton Columbia, Mo., "for I believe it would have consumption today. It's guaranteed to satisfy, and you can get a free trial bottle or 50 cent or $1.00 size at People's Drug Co.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and seeks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

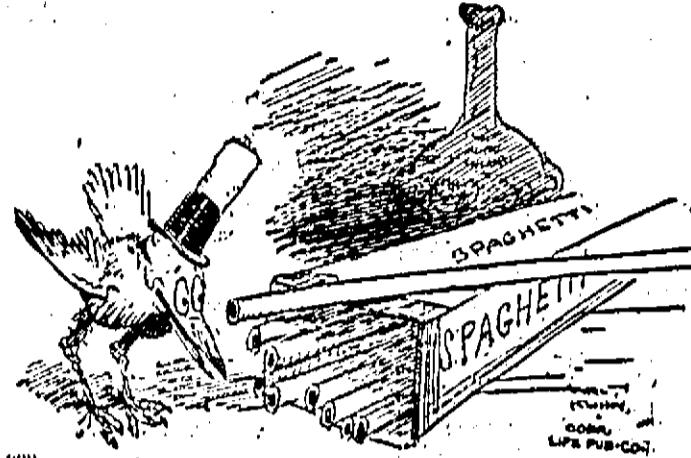

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable, and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.
